Watering

The most common mistake made by people is insufficient watering. Too little water too often encourages a multitude of problems such as a shallow root system. The need for watering depends mainly on your soil and, of course, the weather.

Rainfall Is No Guarantee. Light showers merely wet the surface. Short down-pours do the same. Most of the water is lost in runoff before it can soak in.

How Much Water Is Needed? A lawn will use as much as two inches per week in hot, dry weather – a fraction of that when it is cooler. If you decide your lawn needs water, you should put on enough to wet the entire root zone.

Please water a minimum of 1 inch.

When Is The Best Time? If you can, avoid late afternoon or evening irrigation. Grass that stays wet for a long time favors the development of diseases. However, do not avoid watering at these times if this is the only time of day that you can water.

The Most Important Thing Is Water.
